History: On February 20, 1921, at 9:15 pm, Anchorage's first Police Chief John J. "Black Jack" Sturgus was found shot in the back with a bullet from his own gun, steps away from the Historic Anchorage Hotel. It is rumored that his ghost returns to the scene of the crime every year...

Now: Maude Greenspan, Internationally acclaimed best selling author, has invited guests from around the globe to the Historic Anchorage Hotel on March 20th, to help her launch her latest tell-all book, "Unveiling the Mystery behind the Murder of John J. Sturgus." She has invited Hannah McNutt, grandchild to John McNutt, the night watchman who found Sturgus; Katie Sturgus, rumored to be a granddaughter; John Clarence Mossman, grandson of Marshall Clarence Mossman and Agnus Thornby, reporter who will stop at nothing to get the story.

Dress in the style of the 20's and join us as we celebrate the launching of Maude's book, observe the mystery that is John J. Sturgus, and see why some would kill to have the secret hushed forever.

Only $239 per couple, (includes room for 2, evening appetizers/light meal, cash bar, and breakfast the following morning) or $269.00 for a Suite.
